“China's Economic Rise and Northeast Asian Economic Cooperation

— In the Context of US-China Conflict and COVID-19”

The 1st stage focuses on the rise of China, the world's second-largest economy that faces the new challenges of economic, technology, security and governance conflict with the United States and the COVID-19 pandemic, and its economic relationship and cooperation with other Northeast Asian countries. More specifically, this stage analyzes what economic impacts China-US conflict and COVID-19 have had on China and other Northeast Asian countries and how these impacts are reshaping the economic relationships between China and the Northeast Asian neighbors. It also identifies new challenges for regional economic cooperation in Northeast Asia.
